New Books and Resources

We’re always adding new books to our collections at the Water Library. Stop by or visit our website to check out our new acquisitions for March and April!

New Books for Faculty, Staff, & Students

New Books for Wisconsin Residents

The library also has a new list of great books for young adults.

Books for Young Adults

Community Outreach

Water Library staff have been out in the community, working with our partners, having a great time talking about water. A recent visit to our friends at the Ho-Chunk Center in Baraboo focused on books about gardening as we awaited the warmer weather that was a long time coming. We also returned to the Allied Drive Learning Center in Madison in April and repeated the same session for the kindergarteners and first graders there. We talked about gardening and plants and the children even took some bites of cabbage, carrots and spinach.

If you would like us to come to your library or location for storytime, please send us a message. We’d love to visit!

You may contact us at askwater@aqua.wisc.edu

Water Library celebrates Earth Day

In April, library staff visited the Rosemary Garfoot Public Library in Cross Plains for the third straight year to celebrate Earth Day with the community. The library is Wisconsin’s first “green” library and is a welcome place for our water-related story times. This year we read about boat and conducted our own experiments to see what sinks and what swims.

Follow us!

Find us online for more fun, updates, and information about water news and resources.

- UW Wisconsin’s Water Library
- @WiscWaterLib
- AquaLog